

Nyasha Shani Foy is Senior Counsel, Business and Legal Affairs, Brand Partnerships at Complex Media. At Complex, she advises and counsels on a variety of advertising, commercial, intellectual property and entertainment law-related matters focused on the digital media industry. Prior to Complex, Nyasha worked at VICE Media as Associate Director, Business and Legal Affairs where she served as lead counsel for VICE Digital, VICE Magazine, VICE+ Studio and VICE's agency, VIRTUE. Prior to VICE, she worked as Counsel at Broadway Video, where she supported production and commercial advertising sales. Nyasha received her B.A. in Music and French from Wesleyan University, and her J.D. from New York Law School. She is admitted to practice in California and New York. In addition to her professional experience, she also serves as Chair of the Black Alumni Council at Wesleyan University; member of the National Black Law Students Association, Northeast Region Advisory Board; and member of the New York City Bar Chorus. In her spare time, Nyasha enjoys creative writing, travel, and philanthropy. Nyasha is also a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.